Martha Bayona domine en keirin, Richardson plus rapide que tout le monde

La Colombienne Martha Bayona s'est imposée en keirin, alors que le scratch a été remporté par la favorite de l'épreuve. Katie Archibald, vaingueure du général de l'endurance l'année dernière. Elle a terminé en première position après une attaque tardive. Anita Stenberg a de son côté gagné la course à élimination. La Norvégienne est restée dans la roue de ses concurrentes avant de faire la différence dans la dernière ligne droite.

Le moment fort de la soirée s'est déroulé durant la finale de vitesse hommes. L'Australien Matthew Richardson a fait étalage de la différence qui le séparait des autres coureurs. Dans la dernière ligne droite, il s'est joué d'Harrie Lavrevsen (vainqueur en keirin plus tôt dans la soirée) et a pris sa revanche par rapport aux derniers Mondiaux.

Dans la course à élimination masculine, le Canadien Mathias Guillemette s'est distingué en dominant largement ses adversaires, notamment le Britannique Gavin Hoover.

Au classement général, le sprint est dominé par Shanne Braspennincx chez les emmes et Harrie Lavreysen chez les hommes. En endurance, Mark Stewart est leader tandis que Jennifer Valente constitue son homologue féminin.

UCI TCL OFFICIAL APP POWERED BY aws

The UCI Track Champions League app, powered by the league's global data partner AWS is bringing a unique experience to track cycling fans during the UCI TCL rounds. This new product was promoted during the 2022 season throughout linear tv and digital, with a PR input.

The app delivers an immersive fan experience not seen before in cycling, showcasing the performance data and profiles of riders in real-time, and providing unique insights into the world's best track cyclists.

Fans can take an in-depth look at their favourite rider's live average and maximum data across all four metrics via the 'riders focus mode'. Side-by-side comparisons between two athletes of choice are also available.

UCITCL METAVERSE

In October 2022, a multi-year agreement between infinite reality and Discovery Sports Events was announced to develop - as exclusive metaverse partner - new and revolutionary ways for audiences to engage with track cycling. Only three months after the partnership announcement and an intense work to develop the project, an exclusive metaverse preview was showcased prior to the UCI Track Champions League 2022 grand finale in London, to give the media a first insight of the full immersive fan experience that is being developed for the 2023 season.

Eliott jobe (IR) and François Ribeiro (DSE), leaded a virtual guided tour of the metaverse environment and answered the journalists' questions on site and remotely. After the virtual tour, the journalists were able to enjoy an exclusive and live access to the UCI TCL metaverse during the two final rounds to test and discover the different functionalities and contents that are being developed for next season.

"This definitely caps off a much better year than I ever could have hoped for, and thankfully, my first UCI Track Champions League series has played out pretty much how I hoped for as well. It's a good environment, with good racing, and I've really enjoyed it."

"It's just crazy. I never believed I could win this when I travelled to Mallorca for Round 1. I gained power and experience with every passing round and I kept things consistent. It was an incredible moment when I realised I'd won. This victory is the biggest thing for me. The crowd and the atmosphere was electric".

CORPORATE & SOCIAL RESPONSABILITY

As a signatory to the sports for climate action framework, an initiative from the united nations, Discovery Sports Events works with all its series partners to commit to achieving and supporting global climate change goals. Thus, discovery sports events supports the 17 sustainable development goals implemented by the un. Adopted by 193 countries in 2015, the sdgs are a universal call to action to end poverty, protect the planet, and ensure that by 2030 all people enjoy peace and prosperity.

Since its launch in 2021, the UCI track champions league has been dedicated to promoting equality within the sport.

During the 2022 season, the sustainability goal of the UCI TCL was to use the events as a concrete educational tool for local communities from various backgrounds. Thus, the UCI TCL had supported 3 sdgs through local partnerships :

- Quality education
- Gender equality
- Reduced inequalities

CORPORATE & SOCIAL RESPONSABILITY ACTIVATION SQY - UNIVERSITÉ DE SACLAY

PARTNERSHIP WITH french LOCAL UNIVERSITY

Ten students from the local university were invited to round 3 of the UCI track champions league.

The students came from two different master's degrees specialising in :

Environmental sciences (corporate social responsibility), university of versailles saint-quentin-en-yvelines.

✓ Sport science (sport leisure and event management), university of paris saclay.

They carried out a social and environmental audit of the event. Thanks to their experience, they suggested areas for improvement and proposed new ideas for the next season of the UCI TCL regarding sustainability. Before enjoying the races, they had a private backstage tour of the event and of the TV production

UVSQ (university of versailles saint-quentin-en-yvelines) is part of the paris saclay group, which is ranked 1st in continental europe according to the 2022 academic ranking of world universities (ARWU).

CORPORATE & SOCIAL RESPONSABILITY ACTIVATION LONDON – RISE PROJECT

Rise : gender equality within the broadcast industry

As part of the partnership between the UCI TCL and AWS, eight young women from the programme rise, women in broadcast (wib) visited the UCI track champions league and were given backstage access to the rehearsals before the final rounds of the UCI TCL. The aim of this experience was to provide hands-on experience to a group of students in a tier 1 live sports broadcast event, including access to key roles within the organization.

Rise is a not-for-profit, advocate group whose goal is to achieve a diverse and gender balanced workforce across the broadcast media and entertainment technology sector, specifically within the areas of engineering, technical operations, sales, marketing and business.

CORPORATE & SOCIAL RESPONSABILITY ACTIVATION LONDON – BRITISH CYCLING CITY ACADEMY

British Cycling City Academy: Tackling inequality in cycling

Twelve of the City Academy kids were invited to watch the final round of the uci tcl in london.

In addition to the photos taken and the autographs received, they took part in a press conference with Mark Stewart, Emma Finucane and Chris Hoy. They also talked with Orla Chennaoui, lead presenter for cycling events for Eurosport.

Supported by the Rapha foundation, British Cycling aims to increase participation in under-represented groups through their new city academy hubs. Their goal is to tackle inequality in cycling and empower communities to create their own champions in cycling.

BACK ON TRACK DOCU SERIES

ON TRACK

Back on Track is a five-episode series that goes behind-the-scenes of the UCI Track Champions League. This docuseries tells the gripping stories that shaped the inaugural uci track champions league season in 2021.

Four months on from the league's nerve-shredding final round in London, Back on Track gave viewers an exclusive access-all-areas pass into season one of the UCI Track Champions League.

The series follows a diverse cast of multiple gold medalists and UCI World Champions including Harrie Lavreysen, Emma Hinze, Katie Archibald and Gavin Hoover, unearthing the intense rivalries and unlikely friendships forged both on and off the track.

The docuseries that uncovers the surprising personal tales behind the latest, exciting chapter in track cycling's development. From canada's kelsey mitchell - who went from soccer player to olympic track cyclist in the space of three years - to Emma Hinze and Lea Friedrich - friends, teammates and intense rivals on the track - each rider had a story to tell.

Ride to Survive

As cycling looks to the future it wants to open its doors to a wider audience, starting with a new Tour de France Netflix series from the producers of Formula 1's widely acclaimed Drive to Survive. It is set to be filmed at this year's race. For a series release in 2023.

Eight teams will be featured heavily, including two of the biggest - British squad Ineos Grenadiers and Dutch rivals Jumbo-Visma.

Ineos rider Tom Pidcock says it will be "massive for the sport" but not everybody shares his enthusiasm, with Pogacar's UAE-Team Emirates declining to take part.

The Tour is considered one of the world's biggest sporting events for TV audience reach, and the top male riders earn in the region of 5-6 million euros a year.

Lappartient is keen for the project to work for Tour organisers ASO but wants earnings to trickle down to other areas of the sport, hence the UCI's approach to the "innovation" of track cycling.

The Track Cycling Champions League, which ran last year from June to December, now has its own series Back on Track - currently airing on Eurosport. 🗗

In a departure from the more conventional Olympic look, velodromes played host to a lightshow, riders in striking skinsuits and plenty of associated glitz.

ler Katie Archibald dominated in the Track Champions League

"I think Back on Track is really import for people to understand what is behind the scenes," said Lappartient. "They can see the race on TV but now they can understand exactly how the disciplines work, the pressure on the athletes.

I think it's really import to give some keys for the fans to understand more and discover more about the athletes because they are not always well known.

"Innovation is key and the Track Champions League is an innovative format. Whether the fans are in the velodrome or behind the TV or the tablet they can feel like they are part of this journey.

"When you discover track cycling, for sure you will come back because you will love it."

Back on Track Press Day

World class track cycling is in a difficult place at the moment. The controversial decision to switch from a Winter to a Summer calendar was always going to be disruptive – with a near 18 month was lpanned from the 2020 World championships in Berlin to the 2021 Worlds in Ashgabat, Turkmenistan. Nobody really knew how the move from six World Cups between October and February to three Track Nations Cups in April, May and June would be affected by clashes with the road calendar.
